INTRODUCTORY QUESTIONS

What's wrong with giving bribes? What's wrong with asking for bribes? What's wrong with paying money to a lower official if it speeds up bureaucratic regulations? What's wrong with large executive bonuses after company losses? What's wrong with exchanging promotions for sexual favors? What's wrong with giving expensive gifts to get a contract? What's wrong with hiring your less qualified relatives for important positions? What's wrong with using insider knowledge to buy or sell stock in a company? What's wrong with outsourcing jobs if it will increase your company's profits? What's wrong with allowing foreign contractors to hire children to produce your product if it will increase company profits? Should you report on the management of your own company if you know it is hiding or covering up hazardous chemicals if you risk losing your job? What's wrong with selling chemicals to other countries (where it is legal to do so) if it is against the law to sell these same chemicals in your own country? What's wrong with using your company's economic power to lower process to drive competitors out of business? What's wrong with deregulating government rules? What's wrong with opposing government oversight? What's wrong with setting up secret overseas bank accounts? What's gone wrong with the "free market"?

INSTRUCTIONAL METHODS

Students are expected to read the assigned chapters and articles and case studies before each class. Case studies and hypothetical problems will comprise a part of each class session. Students will consider the case studies individually and in groups.

There will be class discussions and group presentations by students on the case studies and articles.

Assignments and projects require students to actively use resources of the library. Detailed guide to business resources of the library as well as the description of Lincoln University approach to information literacy are available at the LU Library website (lincolnuca.libguides.com).

PROJECT PRESENTATION

There will be a final presentation on a topic to be decided by the students and the professor. The projects will be presented by teams on the last day of instruction. The presentation paper will be submitted before the end of the semester. The presentation will comprise approximately 20 per cent of the final grade. The students will have to discuss their team presentation topics in advance and get the feedback from the instructor.

Students’ work is expected to be original.
